

A Lyrical Symphony

Taylor Swift debuted with her eponymously titled album in 2006, which peaked at #5 in the US charts. Till date she has released 8 studio albums, 7 of which have topped the US charts.

Beyoncé debuted with Dangerously in Love in 2003. Over the years she has released 6 studio albums all of which topped the US charts which is a remarkable feat.

...Complete with all emotions

Positive

The album Lover was described by Taylor as 'a love letter to love itself', it not unexpected to have the most positive lyrics. Although, it does have its fair share of melancholy.

Negative

1989 is depicted as having the highest proportion of negative emotions. This is driven by the high frequency of the word 'shake', which actually conveys a positive emotion in the song's context.

Songs with more positive emotions

Overall Beyoncé's songs have a good blend of both positive as well as negative emotions
